Humanitarians Receive Journalism Awards

Two humanitarians have received awards from the Dog Writers' Assn. of America for their newspaper articles on animal welfare subjects.

Ann Cotrell Free, a freelance writer living in Washington, D.C., received the best column or news report award for a series of articles on animal welfare and control in the Birmingham (Ala.) News. The best feature story award was given to columnist Lois Stevenson, a former director of the HSUS New Jersey Branch, for an article in the Plainfield (N.J.) Courier-News about the Conference on the Ecology of the Surplus Dog and Cat Problem held in Chicago last May. The association also honored the Chicago conference, of which HSUS was a co-sponsor, with the best national education award.

National Geographic Uses HSUS Guiding Principles

The National Geographic Society's Educational Services has notified HSUS that it will include copies of the "HSUS Guiding Principles for Use of Animals in Educational Services" has notified HSUS with a new National Geographic filmstrip on animals.

It will include copies of the "HSUS Guiding Principles for Use of Animals in Educational Services" has notified HSUS of the nationwide distribution of the filmstrip. HSUS, a division of HSUS, keeps members informed of new developments in humane education.

Correction

It was erroneously reported in the winter 1974-75 issue of The Humane Society News that representatives of the pet industry, animal welfare organizations, and air carriers had reached agreement on stricter requirements for the packaging of live animal shipments. In actuality, representatives of the pet industry and humane organizations reached a tentative consensus on a number of proposed packaging rules aimed at providing safer and more humane conditions for the animals.

HSUS Annuity Plan

HSUS has an annuity plan that offers quarterly payments to the donor for life as well as providing an ongoing fund to support HSUS programs. For further information write HSUS headquarters.

Students Donate Money For NAAHE Journal

The University of Tulsa Student Senate has donated $300 to the National Assn. for the Advancement of Humane Education (NAAHE) to pay for distributing copies of the quarterly NAAHE Journal to school libraries throughout the nation. NAAHE, a division of HSUS, keeps members informed of new developments in humane education.

FDA Approves Canine Birth Control Pill

The Food and Drug Administration has approved a birth control pill for female dogs. The new pill, called Ovaban, will soon be available for distribution to veterinarians. The pill is designed to retard estrus and is given for eight days beginning at the start of the estrus cycle. Ovaban is a prescription drug that has been marketed in England for several years under the name of Ovarid. It is the policy of HSUS to endorse any commercial product or service in a manner that will permit its being advertised or promoted as having the approval of the Society.

Breeders will be happy to send you a booklet on how to use the HSUS guidelines for your animal welfare control program.

A HUMANE MOVE—Sue Pressman, HSUS director of wildlife protection, observes Roy, a near-sighted 350-pound American black bear in his temporary quarters at the Wildlife Preserve in Largo, Md. Mrs. Pressman, KIND Director Dale Hytton, and Randal Grobe, executive director of the Sarasota (Fla.) Humane Society, recently arranged for Roy's new home after rescuing him from a 4 x 5 -foot wire mesh cage in Florida, where he had been living for 4 years. After a thorough check Roy was released to roam with other bears in the 80-acre drive-through zoo.

The Needs of Animals Will Continue

Long After You Are Gone

Man's cruelty and irresponsibility to animals will not end in our lifetime. Long after today's humanitarians are gone, animals will need defenders and protectors.

The Humane Society of the United States will be happy to send you a booklet on how to make the best use of your animal welfare bequest.

House Committee on Agriculture.

The National Assn. for the Advancement of Humane Education (NAAHE) will conduct an intensive Humane Education Workshop at Western Hills Lodge in Sequoyah State Park near Wagoner, Okla., July 21-25. The five-day event has been designed by NAAHE, a division of HSUS, to equip participants with the knowledge and skills necessary to plan, promote, and coordinate humane education programs on the local level.

Sequoyah State Park is one of the Southwest's most enjoyable outdoor recreational areas, featuring boating, swimming, golfing, and hiking. A package plan will permit workshop participants to attend all sessions, stay at the lodge, eat all meals at the lodge, and participate in recreational activities for $270. The fee will also include transportation from Tulsa, the closest city, to the lodge.
