Deadline for Survival: Protecting Wildlife Now

Growing concern for the welfare of wild animals is prompting thoughtful new solutions to human/wildlife conflicts and innovative technologies for humane wildlife management. Join a host of distinguished biologists, investigators, and conservationists as they discuss challenges and achievements in wildlife protection during our 1993 symposium.

Mark Owens, Ph.D., and Delia Owens, Ph.D., authors of the best-selling Cry of the Kalahari and founders of the Owens Foundation for Wildlife Conservation, are the 1993 Joseph Wood Krutch medalists. A special presentation on their life and work in the North Luangwa Valley of Zambia will be a symposium highlight.

Although the final scheduling is not confirmed, we hope to be able to welcome Vice President Albert Gore, Jr., as our special guest.

A new era of cooperation and commitment to animal-protection issues has begun in our nation’s capital. We hope you will want to participate in what promises to be useful dialogue on important wildlife issues.
