HSUS SURPLUS-ANIMAL FILM REACHES THOUSANDS OF CONNECTICUT HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS AND TEACHERS. The Animals Are Crying, a film recently produced under the auspices of the National Humane Education Center, depicts the causes and remedies for the tragic surplus animal population. It has been showing almost daily to enthusiastic high school assemblies throughout southwestern Connecticut. At this writing the viewers number some 20,000. The presentation is preceded by remarks from two HSUS members, Mrs. Joan Mutcher and Mrs. Mona Mekler, who have dedicated their time and talent unstintingly to this remarkable humane education vehicle. The positive impact of the film is measured by the high praise from school faculties and by the host of young students who have volunteered to help with our animal welfare program.

As a guide to such student volunteers, a flier is distributed at the end of the program listing specific means by which an individual can help in animal welfare. This flier is in effect a mini-manual in humane work covering as it does spaying, neutering, numerous cruelties, sources of humane information, letter writing to government officials, dealing with the media, writing for publications, organizing humane groups, direct animal welfare, anti-cruelty laws and more.

Outside the school system the film is available to adult and youth organizations on a scheduled basis. For information write or call HSUS State Headquarters.

OLD LYM E ACQUIRING LAND FOR NEW POUND-SHELTER. For longer than we dare to remember HSUS (CB) has been agitating for a new shelter in Old Lyme to replace the present inadequate and obsolete pound. We have published pictures, urged our members to action, attended meetings, written letters to Hartford, appealed to humanitarian instincts and reminded the community of civic pride. Now, at last, the town is taking steps, the first being the purchase of land. We wish to congratulate First Selectman John J. Kemish and his committee members, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Perrone created and produced a TV musical show with a humane theme.

HGRWOLD, has continued with her superb humane-oriented storytelling for little ones. At the same time HSUS (CB) committee members, Mr. and Mrs. Kate Steichen who headed the A

HSUS (CB) and HSUS (NATIONAL) ASSIST IN AIR-TRANSPORT CRUELTY CASE. Wilton AID (Aid to Animals in Distress), New York, was at the recent destination of three tiny HSUS ATOMS shipped from New York.

We gratefully acknowledge the efforts of Wilton AID, the Connecticut branch of HSUS (CB) and HSUS (NATIONAL) which in turn persuaded the transportation firm to refuse to ship any more animals for that particular commercial dealer.

The above near tragedy is one of those "all in the day's work" incidents which in any other business might be considered routine but which in the humane business is always important because suffering is involved.

Since Westchester Airport serves both New York and Connecticut, HSUS (CB) shares both an interest and a responsibility for the handling of HSUS ATOMS at the terminal. Members who wish to help directly with the establishment of a transit-animals shelter at the airport, please let us know. At the same time members concerned with the problem of the SPCA in Westchester. In the effort to prevent any repetition of this cruelty, Mr. Kenneth Heyl, called HSUS (CB). We relayed the complete story to HSUS (CB).

WHAT HSUS IS ALL ABOUT. EVERY SO OFTEN IT COMES TO OUR attention that despite widespread publicity and education programs, many people still do not understand the functions of humane societies in general and HSUS do not understand the functions of humane societies in general and HSUS does not understand the functions of humane societies in particular. So it behooves those of us active in the humane movement in particular. So it behooves those of us active in the humane movement to be ready with answers and able to convey those answers lucidly and convincingly.

As a refresher to veteran HSUS members and as information to new members, we print below a capsule description for use with the doubting or the unknowing.

The primary concern of HSUS is animal welfare. Quite simply we aim to promote kindness and eliminate cruelty to animals. This aims to promote kindness and eliminate cruelty to animals. This same concern is everyday common to all humane societies and in achieving it HSUS has chosen to eliminate the causes of cruelty -- in other place major emphasis on eliminating the causes of cruelty and there will be no need to write, eliminate the cause of cruelty and there will be no need to write, eliminate the cause of cruelty and there will be no need to write, eliminate the cause of cruelty and there will be no need to write.

In this work we are accomplishing this alleviate any consequences of cruelty. In practice we accomplish this through education -- informing the public of a cruelty case or outlining the method of a cruelty case or outlining the method of a cruelty case or outlining the method Since cruelty assumes so many guises and is so everywhere prevalent we establish proprieties. Teachers, students and those who are listened to by the public are vital audiences we must reach. On the specific side such practical problems as reducing the surplus animal population and protecting our threatened wildlife from harm are major interests. Which is why we worry about and work for animals when there exists so much animal misery. The point is that, again saying so, animal welfare work does benefit people. The individuals who act humanely towards animals and other creatures will have the same humane feeling toward their fellow men. Ideal for those who want to see right-and-wrong benefits from animal welfare we can spotlight such rewards: For parents a reduction in juvenile delinquency, for the conservationist the preservation of wild life, for the pet owner, protection of his animals, for the health and security officials a lessening of human hazards, for the motorist less likelihood of an auto-animal collision, for the taxpayer a rate cut. Even for those who dislike animals, humane action restrains animal activities which these animalphobes consider annoyances.

In carrying out its programs HSUS is advantageously constituted. Local committees, county offices, state offices and the National Humane Education Center provides guidance, research and materials in the education field. On the global scene affiliation with the World Federation for the Protection of Animals helps in animal welfare matters abroad.

Such is HSUS in brief. With a diligent staff and enthusiastic knowledgeable participation by our supporters, we can continue the already remarkable HSUS progress toward making kindness universal and cruelty a thing of the past.

IN MEMORIAM -- MORTON J. NEWBURGER

Mr. Morton J. Newburger, Honorary Founding Director of HSUS (Conn.), died at his home on January 12, 1972. As one of the small dedicated group of humanitarians who founded HSUS in Connecticut some fourteen years ago, Mr. Newburger personally made the initial outpour of the late Fred Myers, Founder of HSUS (National), which resulted in the formation of our Connecticut chapter. In the ensuing years Mr. Newburger contributed of his wisdom, devotion, time, energy and means toward the growth of membership into its present thousands, served as the first President and as a Board member thereafter. Unwaving in his belief, he was to the humanitarians who worked with his a man of deep compassion, staunch friend, altogether a sensitive, understanding and over-enthusiastic humanitarian.

Mr. Newburger labored long and effectively toward the passage of the Federal and State Humane Slaughter Laws. As both a humanitarian and a widely known breeder of championship dogs, he accepted a position on the Governor's Commission to Revise the Dog Laws. After his death HSUS took possession of his dog herd. Many provisions beneficial to animal welfare were adopted. In the area of wild life preservation he was outspoken against cruel methods of hunting and trapping land animals, birds and sea mammals. HSUS stood eternally grateful to Mr. Newburger and shall endeavor to live up to the high standards of humanitarianism he so truly represented.

WRITE A LETTER AND RIGHT A WRONG. Letters to the Editor are one means of rallying support to animal welfare causes. All they require for materials are a piece of stationery, an envelope and a postage stamp. To be effective however, there are some ground rules. Write letters short but sure. Always give your name and address. Letters critical of animal welfare situations should contain constructive suggestions as to how to avoid a repetition of cruelty or how to correct a bad situation. When you want the reader to do right at once, state what he should do such as where the meeting is he should attend, who the person or organization is he should write or call, how he individually should cope with an animal problem. Write letters of praise as well as condemnation. People who do nice things for animals—no matter what—should be praised. As an example, one of the most effective writing tools against the kill-for-fun hunters is ridicule. An editorial barb in a hunter's thick hide frequently goads him into an indescribable response which proves your point. And making him appear ludicrous to the public eye transforms the big bold brave hunter into a blustering bumbling buffoon. See page 6 for samples.

IN THE DO-IT-YOURSELF CORNER we have HSUS (CB) member, author and dog fancier, Mrs. J. Whitney Peterson, who writes the column "Popular Dogs."

While her column is primarily for the owners of purebred Keeshonds she never overlooks an opportunity to weave a humane theme into her writing. Recently she pointed out the evils, particularly to the do-it-yourself corner, of the so-called puppy-mills which breed dogs in vast quantity and distribute them indiscriminately to retail outlets all over the nation. In her columns she not only showed what was wrong but told her readers what to do about warning the general public.

We would suggest that members who write speak before clubs or teach in the classroom follow Mrs. Whitney's example and advocate humanitarianism wherever it can be done adroitly regardless of what the principal subject of the expository may be.

A HOUSE IS NOT A HOME FOR A PET ABANDONED THEREIN. The usual image of an abandoned animal is that of a forlorn kitten in a parking lot or a barking dog chained to a pole. In truth however the animal is abandoned in his own home. Sometimes this happens when irresponsible pet owners pack up, lock up and drive off leaving the animal to its fate. More often though the abandonment is thoughtless and inadvertent. We refer to the pets of elderly people who die or are moved in a helpless condition to hospitals or convalescent homes leaving those pets uncared for. Enough of this sort of cruelty has come to our attention to warrant this alert.

As an example we present Frankie, once the beloved companion of an elderly couple. When the owners removed to a nursing home, the owner was unable to communicate and Frankie was left locked in the abandoned house until (continued on page 7)
Praise With A Flea Animal Stories

Animal Stories
To the Edior of The Courant:

Thursday, January 20th was a rare day indeed as regards front-page headlines. The Courant Page One featured not a single plot, murder, war or major catastrophe. Instead the public was treated to three pictures covering fully half the page, each depicting animals: Children romping with a dog, ostriches squawking about the usual front page is you". recognition of the fact that readers can to remedy suffering to flocks of suffering animals.

The intriguing part of this unusual front page is your recognition of the that readers are drawn to animal pictures and stories to the extent that when given the opportunity you award the animals top billing. As a fillip to this refreshing circumstance you printed on Page 32 a fourth animal-interest picture with a gentle and amusing theme.

In a worried and muddled world we think this animals-great issue was just fine. What people must remember, however, is that simultaneously to this event occurred and scenes that are not photographed: Puppies and kittens abandoned in mid-winter, horses starving in State-administered shelters, and feral, wild life hunted and harried to extinction, animals tortured for fun, profit or sport. We are not advising that animal-sufferers may not have recognized the animal-joy news. We do advise that readers of all ages will and great heart hear in mind that for every happy animal there are hordes of poor and flocks of suffering animals. Such readers should do what they can to remedy suffering to whatever the form of life.

Urges opposition to impounding fee

Dear Editor:

The proposal of Alderman Ernest Pet-tinelli that the Ordinance and Salaries Committee increase dog-pound redemption fees from $5 to $25 should be opposed by New Britain citizens for both humane and economic reasons.

People of limited means whose dogs are impounded will not be able to redeem their pets. Such unredempted animals will then either be put to death at city expense or subject to claim by research laboratories. If they are put to death, the city will be out of pocket for the warden's expenses, the dog food during the holding period, and the euthanasia fee. If they are taken to laboratories, they will be experimented upon, a fate which no owner wants visited upon his household pet.

An argument advanced for the proposals, namely, that strays are a major problem, is not valid if, as the dog wardens reported states, the problem is not of major proportions.

I urge all New Britain pet owners and taxpayers who feel as I do to write expressing their opposition to the $25 fee to the Chairman of the Ordinance and Salaries Committee, Ald. Thomas Moore. 60 Dens Dr.

Hunters called vanishing species

TO THE EDITOR:

I wish to express appreciation to the game hunters who wrote you regarding my letter on bear hunting. Their anguish, puerile and backhanded attempts at justification of hunting-for-fun are capital arguments against the very "sport" they go to defend. Instead of joining me in criticizing the unseemliness of bears I described they placed themselves in the same insidious category by defending such callous killers.

I can only commiserate with all of these gentlemen as having had the misfortune not to be born back in the days of Ab the Caveman when hunting was an imperative need for survival.

One of the gun-wielding hunters invited me to carry his ancient flintlock on a Maine hunting trip with him. It is just too bad that I didn't know him during my World War II days when I was a professional Navy gunnery officer and in turn have invited him on one of my many-score shooting expeditions where our targets in our .410s added to the thrill by shooting back at us. (I suppose that having the target retaliate is not considered fair so that the "sport" hunter probably would have spurred my offer). I could if I wished, however, invite him to accompany me on one of my wildest photographic expeditions near my cabin in Northern Maine where he could carry my camera case and use it as a defensive weapon if attacked by one of those ferocious rabbits, squirrels, ducks or porcupines he mentioned. (I suppose that the thought of ending the deep, dark, green woods without a gun probably would cause him to refuse this invitation).

An argument advanced for the proposal, namely, that strays are a major problem, is not valid if, as the dog wardens reported states, the problem is not of major proportions.

I urge all New Britain pet owners and taxpayers who feel as I do to write expressing their opposition to the $25 fee to the Chairman of the Ordinance and Salaries Committee, Ald. Thomas Moore. 60 Dens Dr.

Such pet-perils can be avoided. For one thing, every pet owner, whatever his or her age, can make provision for the animals in case of sudden death or illness. Elderly people should instruct relatives and friends what to do with pets when they can no longer be cared for at home. If through accident, infirmitiy or death, pets are left behind, friends, relatives or neighbors should care for and inquire as to the disposition of the animals calling a shelter for assistance if need be. Finally, the elderly should be persuaded and assisted to spay and neuter before (as witness the eleven dogs above) the population grows beyond their control.

ABANDONMENT WARNINGS

The notices have been printed and donated to HSUS (G2) by Mr. Daniel Bariott. The notices are to be displayed in shopping centers, town dumps, recreation areas or anywhere the public foragers are 9" X 14" in size. The text reads as follows:

NOTICE

RESIDENTS OF THE STATE OF CONNECTICUT ARE WARNED THAT THE STATE LAW STIPULATES THAT THE PENALTY FOR ABANDONMENT OF ANY PET ANIMAL CAN BE $500.00 FINE AND/OR ONE YEAR IN PRISON.

Anyone wishing notices, please write or call state headquarters.

GREYHOUND RACING is contemplated in Connecticut as another form of gambling intended to raise money for the State. As you know, we oppose the exploitation of any animals in the entertainment field, particularly where competition is involved. In the case of greyhounds, information at hand indicates that cruelty is always a possibility in the selection rescued by HSUS. As another instance, an elderly lady was transferred to a relative's home leaving behind twenty cats when the relative thought could fend for themselves. In still another case, there were eleven dogs, none spayed or neutered, with nowhere to go when their invalid mistress departed for the hospital. Tachi, shown here was one of the eleven saved by HSUS.
and the training of the dogs and there is ever the likelihood that in actual races dogs may be drugged or their paws and claws tampered with. We ask that any member who has facts, articles or news items on dog racing forward them to us.

THE LEGHOLD TRAP is a torture machine out of the Dark Ages. As with the dog racing we are assembling as much proof of its evil as possible. Anyone who has information please mail to us. We are particularly interested in instances of illegal trapping including the trapping of pets, birds, or protected wild animals. Photographs will add to the effectiveness of our arguments.

NEW PUBLICATIONS OF INTEREST are available through State Headquarters. One such prepared by the National Humane Education Center is a recommended juvenile reading list for libraries. The books have been selected for an attitude they convey to the reader, representing kindness, consideration, or respect or appreciation for another form of life. This list is free.

Also available free is the eight-page summary of the American Veterinary Medical Association Euthanasia Study.

Another publication, "Once Theirs Alone," a 140-page bibliography of humane works by Jean McClure Kelly may be borrowed or purchased.

IT HAPPENS TO THE BEST OF THEM. People are accustomed to regarding an abused pet as a scruffy mongrel in the hands of a sadist. However, in many cases the mistreated animal comes from an apparently good home and claims an impressive pedigree. The well-bred poodle shown here is a case in point. Neglected in her own home, she was literally a bag of bones when rescued by HSUS member Mrs. Bunny Zaddo. Clipped, groomed, fed and given much needed veterinary care she is now residing happily in a new home where she is receiving all the love she needs. We have said before and reiterate now that a major focus of cruelty is in the pet owner's home. And we have said before and reiterate now that humane education is the only means to eliminate such cruelty.

WELL DONE THOU GOOD AND FAITHFUL SERVANT means more than words to HSUS member, Mrs. Carlton Beals who in addition to harboring numerous small-animal strays has now arranged with the New York Police Department to adopt a retired police horse who can live out its days with comfort and care on the Beals' property.

HSUS (CB) ACTION HALT BULLFIGHT ADVERTISING. When several of our members called attention to airline ads which depicted bullfighting as a tourist attraction in Mexico, HSUS (CB) contacted the airline management pointing out the cruelty of bullfights and urging that other Mexican attractions be substituted as tourist inducements. The airline thanked us and acted at once, withdrawing the objectionable ads and promising to refrain from further featuring of bullfights. Members who wish to express appreciation to the airline should write: Mr. K.L. Kelley, Jr., Vice President, Eastern Air Lines, Miami International Airport, Miami, Florida 33148

HUMANE EDUCATION AND NATURE CENTER PROGRESS. MEMORIAL FUNDS REQUESTED. Land surveys, site engineering and final architectural plans are complete for construction of the Center on the land donated by Actress Norma Terris. The building will contain offices, mailing room, library, children's work room and small assembly hall. On the grounds will be a picnic area, nature trails and a pet cemetery. We need funds however, and personally invited are contributions in large or small amounts memorializing deceased friends, relatives or pets. Suitable recognition of such memorials will be made at the Center. If you wish to discuss memorials, please call or write State Headquarters. A bulletin will be forthcoming on the Center shortly but in the meantime, while checks would be appreciated. The sooner the funds are at hand the sooner the Center will start functioning in behalf of animal welfare.

In this connection we are pleased to say that almost all of our office equipment has been given to us. This month's contribution was an electric typewriter presented by the Burritt Mutual Savings Bank of New Britain. However, we now need an addressograph-grapotype, a rapid photostat machine, a camera and file cabinets. Either contributions or leads as to where we may obtain these items will be appreciated.

WANT ALL THE NEWS?

Mrs. Karen S. Baer, 1980 winner of the HSUS (CB) Scholarship Award, is now employed at the New Haven Humane Society where she is working full time caring for animals and helping to educate Connecticut school children in the humane ethic.

HSUS(CB) is immensely pleased in having had a part in furthering Karen's education toward this fine career.

KEEP HSUS INFORMED

State headquarters wants to know what is happening in the animal welfare field all over Connecticut. You can help keep HSUS (CB) abreast of events by sending us clippings or writing us letters. Frequently, these enable us to take informed and effective action.

HEAD WEST this fall to the HSUS National Conference which will be held in Salt Lake City, Utah, October 20, 21, 22. Watch the National Bulletins for details.

ALSO CONSIDER a trip to Europe, in late autumn with fellow humanitarian. The proposal is a package-tour to the British Isles featuring visits with overseas humanitarian and tours of humane establishments. The trip would also include sightseeing of historic places, theater parties and the like. Cost is extremely low with a portion of the proceeds to HSUS. Call or write State headquarters for details.

KEEP HSUS INFORMED OF YOUR ADDRESS AND ZIP CODE

ANIMAL ARTIFACTS SOUGHT FOR HSUS (CB) MUSEUM. The HSUS (CB) Humane Education Center will contain a museum of animal artifacts -- articles made by man for use in his varied relationships with animals of all kinds. Purpose of the museum will be to illustrate how animals have been an integral part of man's life pattern from ancient days to the present. In particular we wish to emphasize the long-term debt man owes to animals.

We ask that our members search their attics, barns and collars for museum items. Examples of such artifacts are: saddles, harness, buggies, sleighs, farrier's tools, Arctic dog sled, Indian travois, dog sleds, old cream separator, churn, cowbells, shepherd's crook, fleecing shears, early birdhouses, oven jacks, pigeon message-carrying boxes, horse-drawn machinery, early veterinary instruments and patent remedies, unusual animal art jewelry or tallmen, belonging to famous dog heroes, old toys for puppies and kittens, poultry equipment such as egg candlers and incunabula. Now that you have the idea, see what you can ferret out and contribute.

As far as we know this will be the first museum of its kind. Museums featuring old trolley cars, antique automobiles, colonial households and the like attract the public in large numbers. We hope our museum will do the same. Help us make it a success.

RUNNING SCARED. We note with interest a press report that the National Rifle Association has approved a $104,000 expenditure for a television series showing hunting in a favorable light. We can assume from this that the hunting crowd is frightened over its diminished public image and must needs bid for public support.

While we can derive some satisfaction from this evidence of hunters running scared, we must stand ready to refute whatever justification they may offer bearing in mind particularly the subtle influence of television on juvenile minds.

FLEA COLLARS: BANE OR BLESSING? We are indebted to HSUS (CB) Advisor Dr. George D. Whitney, D.V.M., for the following information on the use of flea collars. We quote: "In my experience, I find that the flea collars can be a blessing but they also can be quite dangerous. In at least two cases I am convinced that these collars have caused the death of dogs. In each case, the animal was a borderline animal in that with strict diet and frequent medication the animal was being maintained in a fairly healthy manner. However, with the advent of the effects of flea collars, in each of these cases it was the 'straw that broke the camel's back' and both animals were put to sleep. They developed a skin irritation, first at the collarline under the flea collar and then a similar condition broke out all over the bodies. These animals, it was felt, would be most humanely treated by euthanasia.

"I still think there are occasions when the collars are perhaps important for the pet. We have a standing rule that no collar is ever to be put on a dog or cat unless it is first removed from its container and left exposed to the air in a fairly warm place for at least 12 hours, after which it is put on the animal not too tightly and the animal is checked daily for any signs of irritation. If after a week no effects have been seen, we consider that the collar is safe for the animal.

"Using this warning to our clients we have not had any serious problems, as long as they followed these directions and they have proven to be a boon to the pet owner who is not as conscientious as he might be in the control of ectoparasites."
